

K-LOVE is a vital service to the Tallahassee community which must not be trampled by the demands of LPFM advocates. As a Tallahassee resident, I depend on K-LOVE's positive, encouraging message to get me through the frustration of commuting. With K-LOVE I arrive at work with a smile on my face everyday. Without K-LOVE, there can be little doubt that I will die of a heart attack or stroke while attempting to commute to or from work some time within the next 10 years. This is not exaggeration or hyperbole. I depend on K-LOVE.

Further, I doubt that I am the only one in the Tallahassee community who feels this way. While there may be others who attempt to serve this market, none do it with the quality and production values that are possible for K-LOVE. If you compound my dependence on K-LOVE by the number of people here who listen to it, the results of crushing this service under the heel of government fiat should be easy to envision.

There can be no doubt in the mind of any rational, thinking individual that K-LOVE serves the public interest better with their positive, encouraging message than any sub-local LPFM Johnny-Come-Lately would ever aspire to. How can you even consider such a monstrous trampling of the public interest?
